DETAILED ACTION

1. An examination of this application reveals that applicant is unfamiliar with patent prosecution procedure. While an inventor may prosecute the application, lack of skill in this field usually acts as a liability in affording the maximum protection for the invention disclosed. Applicant is advised to secure the services of a registered patent attorney or agent to prosecute the application, since the value of a patent is largely dependent upon skilled preparation and prosecution. The Office cannot aid in selecting an attorney or agent.

Applicant is advised of the availability of the publication "Attorneys and Agents Registered to Practice Before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office." This publication is for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 1-3 are rejected as failing to define the invention in the manner required by 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph.

The claims are narrative in form and replete with indefinite and functional or operational language. The structure which goes to make up the device must be clearly and positively specified. The structure must be organized and correlated in such a manner as to present a complete operative device. The claims must be in one sentence form only. Note the format of the claims in the patents cited.

For claims 1-3, the Examiner suggests to renumber the claims in Arabic numbering, and also a complete re-write of each claim with "comprising" format in one sentence. See MPEP § 2111.03.

Claim 1 is indefinite because it is devoid of any structural element. The Examiner suggests to incorporate claim 2 into claim 1.

For claim 2, line 4, the phrase "last longer without matting" is vague and indefinite, i.e., it is unclear as to the scope of "last longer" and the meaning of "matting". For the purpose of this Office action, it is presumed that the resiliency of the filling material is greater than a regular polyurethane foam or synthetic fiber (See Specification, page 4, last paragraph).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Oliver (US 3761131) either individually, or in view of WO 99/52405 (Derwent Abstract).

Oliver's invention is directed to a sofa-like article of furniture having pillow-like seat and back cushions. Each cushion consists of a flexible cover filled with a resilient particulate material such as chunks of polyurethane foam (Abstract).

For claims 1-3, although Oliver lacks express teachings as to the reticulated open-celled structure of the foam and the size of the foam particulates, it is believed that polyurethane foams are inherently open-celled, and a suitable particulate size is either inherently disclosed, or an obvious optimization to one of ordinary skill in the art. Alternatively, it is noted that WO '405 is directed to a pillow formed of preferably a reticulated polyurethane foam, and the pillow provides ventilation which is adequate for prevention of sweating under normal conditions (Derwent Abstract). As such, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Oliver's filling material with the foam of WO '405, motivated by the desire to obtain improved resiliency and ventilation to the pillow. Finally, regarding the air filtering property of the foam, it is also believed to be inherent to an open-celled foam structure.

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. In addition, the following references are cited of interest for making polyurethane foam pillow:

US 5797154 to Contreras, which is directed to a pillow formed of a reticulated polyurethane foam.
